

2019 Workshops with Timothy C. Ely in Colfax, Washington

The Sketchbook: Thoughts and Actions

Detail of 50 years of sketchbooks by Timothy C. Ely.

July 15 - July 19, 2019
or
July 29 - August 2, 2019

This summer we offer two different date options. Both weeks will be similar in scope and topics, both are appropriate for the beginner as well as intermediate and advanced book binders. All levels welcome, and each will find ample inspiration. Hand skills from any discipline are helpful, but bookbinding experience is not required

These workshops fill quickly, so let us know via text, phone or email your desire to attend, including your preferred dates. If you have no preference and either date works for you, let us know that as well.

We will take your reservation in the order received, first come, first served. This will hold a space for you for ten days from the date of receipt of your reservation request, which will be acknowledged via reply to your text, phone call, or email.

Receipt of your non-refundable deposit and registration form within ten days will guarantee your place. At the end of ten days, if we don't have your deposit and registration form, we will release your reservation and open your space to another participant. See details in this flyer.

"Incredible as it may seem, the realization that notebooks kept by artists, writers, composers, scientists, architects, inventors, engineers, choreographers—inspired thinkers of every conceivable discipline—might provide a window into the wonders of the creative process is a relatively recent avenue of scholarly inquiry, beginning in the latter years of the nineteenth century and coming into full bloom in the twentieth." NICHOLAS A. BASBANES from his book On Paper

This workshop connects the dots and arcs of adventure. Having kept sketchbooks and journals for 50 years, I am beginning to see a greater array of connections and how they can solidify our thoughts, projections, and memories.

In this five-day intensive, we will delve into eccentric aspects of bookbinding and design, of structure and purpose, of often overlooked first principals of the craft of bookbinding, as well as examine the great need for recording our lives and musings.

The sketchbook provides a platform from which the participant can merge the generation of idea and observation with the fabrication of a handmade book. This is a space where technique and concept are fused. It is a space where skills can be both learned and refined.

In this workshop you will build one or two sketchbooks with rigid board covers. You will explore surface design on covering materials and variations in structure. Adhesives, their make-up and use for a range of techniques, both utilitarian and decorative, will be covered. Those who choose to do so will incorporate endpapers into their second book, a new process added this year.

Location: Colfax, Washington

Colfax is a small town in farm country, located an hour south of Spokane in Washington State, in the heart of the beautiful and unique rolling hills of The Palouse—lenticular capital of the world.

The workshop will be held at the Catalyst Church campus, with great views and lots of work space, less than 2 miles from Timothy's studio and his cabinets of wonder.

Cost

The fee is $595 and includes all basic materials (paper, board, adhesives, paints, fabric, thread), the use of a bookbinding tool kit with all basic tools, daily snacks, and Wednesday night dinner. Transportation, lodging and other meals will be by your own arrangement.

A non-refundable $75 deposit will reserve your place.

Space is limited to 12 people, so reserve your spot soon! These workshops fill quickly.

Spouses who are not otherwise workshop attendees may join us for the Wednesday dinner for $35.

Getting Here

Plan to arrive by Sunday afternoon, prior to the first day of the workshop in order to get settled.

We are 60 miles south of Spokane, which has an international airport served by several major airlines. We are also about the same distance north of Lewiston, Idaho, with its regional airport. Alaska and Horizon Airlines serve Pullman/Moscow Regional Airport, about 20 miles from Colfax, but we have found less expensive flights and more schedule options via Spokane. Car rentals are available at all airports.

Departure Note

For those flying via Spokane (and the same is likely to be true for Lewiston), it is best to allow 2 1/2 hours ahead of flight time for departure from Colfax. So as not to miss anything in the action-packed workshop, or risk a speeding ticket (for which we are nationally known), plan your departure for the Saturday following the last day of the workshop. For morning departures, unless you like getting up at 4:00 am, we suggest nothing earlier than an 8:30 am flight.

Timothy Ely

Timothy C. Ely is an artist who, for over four decades, has been combining the forces of drawing and painting with the construction of books. Each of his books is a unique fabrication, most of which reside in public and private collections worldwide. In addition to these manuscript books, Ely has been a student and scholar of the sketchbook since the 1960s, having filled over 100 volumes to date.

He received his MFA in Design in 1975 from the University of Washington. A 1981 NEA grant took him to Japan and England for training in the traditional methods of bookbinding. In 1992 he collaborated with the late ethno-pharmacologist Terence McKenna on Synesthesia, a limited edition book published by Granary Books in New York. In 1994 he received a Western States Arts Foundation grant. His first trade book, The Flight into Egypt, was published in 1995 by Chronicle Books.

Ely has traveled the U.S. and the world to teach, including Norway, Costa Rica, The Center for Book Arts in NYC, Penland, the Wide Awake Garage, Pyramid Atlantic, and the Oregon College of Art and Craft.
